WEEK THREE COMPLETE!

My goodness! It's been such a busy week with Parents' Evening and all sorts of other things going on behind the scenes! Mathematics leaders have been working hard to refine our assessment processes and looking at ways we can further support our SEND pupils with their maths development.

It's a GREAT day to have a GREAT day.

PARENT'S EVENING

We hope your meeting with your child's class teacher was helpful and informative! Once again we need to say a huge thank you to the amazing Y6 helpers who made sure the meetings ran smoothly and to time. We've received lots of praise for their good manners and friendliness. Well done kiddies!

BEHAVIOUR LENS versus CONNECTION LENS

Two ways of understanding the same moment
www.SocialWorkersToolbox.com

WHEN A CHILD SHOUTS OR SWEARS

"They're so disrespectful."	"Something has overwhelmed them."
"They always try to control everything."	"This looks like dysregulation."
"They just want attention."	"How do I help them feel safe enough to reset?"

WHEN A CHILD REFUSES SCHOOL

"They're lazy."	"What is making school feel unsafe or unmanageable?"
"They don't care about their future."	"Is anxiety driving this?"
"They're manipulating me."	"How do we support first and then build expectations?"

WHEN A CHILD LIES

"They can't be trusted."	"Are they scared of getting into trouble?"
"They're sneaky."	"Are they trying to avoid shame?"
"They're choosing to deceive."	"How safe do they feel telling the truth?"

AFTER AGGRESSIVE BEHAVIOUR

"They have to learn this is not acceptable."	"Safety first. Then repair."
"They need to know I am in charge."	"What happened before this?"
	"How do we rebuild connection as well as set limits?"

Be firm about behaviour. Be soft about the child.

Some behaviours need clear limits.
Hitting. Swearing. Breaking things. Refusing reasonable boundaries.
These actions cannot be ignored.
But the child is more than their behaviour.
You can stop the behaviour without shaming the child.
You can hold a boundary without withdrawing warmth.
You can correct firmly and still stay connected.
